

I pay for telephone service so that I can USE the service at my convenience,,,NOT to be hounded by telemarketers. And that includes companies I do business with. They have my mailing address, and are free to offer their services by mailing all the information they care to. There is no need for them to tie up my phone, interrupting my life. I see no reason why I should have to put up with high- pressure salespeople disrupting my dinnertime. And don't think for a minute "you can turn your phone off" is a legitimate response. If I did that, and my child was sick or injured and needed to reach me, what would be the purpose of paying for a phone? DO YOU like telemarketers calling YOUR home? I consider it an invasion of privacy! Indiana has a no call law,,,and it needs to stay in place.